JLR Timeline

The Jaguar Challenge

From glory to uncertainty: the Jaguar story

Acquisition

2008: Tata Motors acquires Jaguar Land Rover from Ford for $2.3B.

Early boom: new models, surging China sales, global prestige comeback.

Jaguar vision:

- “Live the exceptional with soul”
- “Creators of modern luxury, all-electric, sustainable future.”

Decline

Sales ↓ 70% since 2018

Luxury EV market +25%/year, Jaguar has only one EV (I-Pace)

<20% of JLR sales → lowest profitability in Tata motors portfolio

Once a rising star, now fighting to stay relevant.

Identity Crisis

Core issue: Blurred brand positioning, neither true luxury nor pure performance.

Mixed messages: sporty classics (F-Type, XE) vs futuristic “modern luxury” (I-Pace)

Pricing: too high for BMW M / Porsche competitors

Brand message “Modern Luxury” feels vague and hollow

Because a brand without a clear position loses both differentiation and emotional connection

1. Which of the following best describes Jaguar in your opinion?

2. How clear do you think Jaguar's brand identity is compared to other premium brands?

3. If Jaguar were to focus more on one direction, which would you prefer?

Survey Methodology:
Sample size: 123 respondents

OUR JAGUAR BRAND PERCEPTION SURVEY

Jaguar Land Rover : Financial situation

While JLR’s financials appear stable at first glance, a closer look reveals that Jaguar’s sales have been in a steep decline, offering little to no meaningful contribution to the group’s overall performance. This underscores a structural imbalance within JLR’s brand portfolio.

JLR is operationally solid, not underperforming, but Still has room to improve efficiency & pricing power compared to top-tier luxury peers

BCG Matrix in play

By prioritizing the Question Mark segment and neglecting existing Stars and Cash Cows, Jaguar risks creating an unbalanced JLR portfolio. This overreliance on uncertain EV ventures could jeopardize brand stability and long-term profitability.

Jaguar's unique value proposition

Target customer profile

Demographics

30-50 years old, upper-income, urban professionals or entrepreneurs

Pain points

- Most EV's (e.g. Tesla) feel uniform and emotionless
- Traditional luxury brands (e.g. Bentley) seem old-fashioned

Desired Gain

- Distinct identity & exclusivity
- Premium service, high resale value
- Recognition through subtle distinction
- Effortless ownership experience

Value Proposition

For modern drivers seeking performance with purpose, Jaguar combines British luxury and electric innovation for a timeless & emotional driving experience

Pain relievers

- Bring back emotion to EVs
- Preserve brand DNA in electrification
- Differentiate through luxury & performance
- Reinforce brand distinctiveness

Gain Creators

- Heritage meets innovation
- Advanced tech and credibility
- Premium customer experience
- Consistent brand integrity across all touchpoints

Offering

- Luxury cars with design focus and electrification
- Hand crafted interiors and premium materials
- Storytelling rooted in British heritage and elegance
 - Fusion of craftmanship and technology

Jaguar's current market reality: Premium but not distinct

Market Price Segmentation

Market Mapping in 2025

The industry is undergoing major transformations : electrification has become the main strategic priority for all brands.

Competition is fierce, making differentiation a key challenge.

Jaguar is positioned in the middle of the premium market, alongside Audi, BMW, and Mercedes

Jaguar's price and performance levels remain similar to those of its main competitors.

To stand out, Jaguar must choose between:

- Focusing on petrol and electric performance,
- Entering the ultra-luxury electric niche.

OUR RECOMMENDATION : SPLIT JAGUAR IN 2 DIVISIONS

Reimagine Jaguar as a dual-brand powerhouse, combining ultra-luxury and performance

1. Jaguar Ultra-Luxury division

Positioning: Electric British Elegance
Target: Younger global elite
Focus: Craftsmanship, sustainability, serenity

2. Jaguar Performance division

Positioning: Emotion through performance and exclusivity
Target: Younger performance enthusiasts
Focus: Design, driver connection, sportiness

The Spheres of Shange (Oliver Wyman)

Objective 1 : Rebuild Jaguar as an ultra-luxury electric brand competing with Rolls-Royce and Bentley

Expected Outcomes

- Stronger profitability: moving from a volume-driven to a value-driven model reinforces margins and financial resilience.
- Revitalized brand image: Jaguar re-establishes itself as a benchmark of “Electric British Elegance,” recognized alongside the world’s top luxury marques.
- Enhanced group positioning: the brand becomes Tata’s technological and symbolic showcase in the luxury EV space, strengthening group synergies and innovation capacity.

The Pyramid of Excellence (Keller's model)

Objective 2 : Reinforce Jaguar's performance DNA, emotional and sporty, while accelerating portfolio renewal

DECLINE OF JAGUAR

Tata Motors Press Release – Q1 FY25 (July 8, 2024)

Tata Motors Group's total global wholesales: 329,847 units
Jaguar Land Rover (JLR) sales: 97,755 units in total, of which:
8,227 units for Jaguar=> accounts for only ~8.4% of JLR's total sales.

This confirms that Jaguar is the smallest contributor within Tata Motors' portfolio, both in volume and strategic weight for immediate use

PRESS RELEASE

Tata Motors Group global wholesales at 3,29,847 in Q1 FY25

SWOT ANALYSIS

STRENGTHS	WEAKNESSES	OPPORTUNITIES	THREATS
• Backing from Tata Motors, ensuring financial stability and access to advanced R&D • Established global network • Flexibility to reposition : Jaguar has existing credibility in both luxury and performance, making brand split feasible • Strong design identity and craftsmanship associated with British luxury	• Blurred brand identity: unclear market position (neither pure luxury nor performance) • Limited EV portfolio : lagging competitors in electrification • Low profitability within Tata's portfolio • Aging lineup and lack of product differentiation across models	• Brand restructuring into Luxury and Performance lines -> clear positioning and market segmentation • Luxury division can capture the ultra-premium market (Bentley, Rolls-Royce) -> higher margins • Performance division can reconnect with Jaguar's heritage and compete with Porsche, Aston Martin • EV expansion: new electric models under both sub-brands could leverage Tata's EV expertise + Growing global demand for sustainable premium vehicles	• Intense competition in both luxury (Rolls-Royce, Bentley) and performance (Porsche, BMW M, Tesla) • High R&D and marketing costs to launch two distinct brand identities • EV transition pressure from regulations and market expectation segments

SUPPORTING MARKET DATA

The Market Today :

- Splited in 3 parts : Premium / Luxury / Ultra Luxury
- Multiple options : sportiness, luxurious, both...
- Very wide price range
- Big group of brands (Audi, BMW, Mercedes...) with the same proposition / target customers

The Market Tomorrow :

- Becoming more and more electric : Customers will buy even more electrified cars tomorrow
- Two very important things for customers: sportiness and luxury at this price point.

Key Supporting Facts

- Sales collapse: –77.6 % (Jan–May 2025) to only 2 776 cars sold; production paused.
- Market shift: Luxury EV segment = $35 bn (+10 % CAG).
- Trade deal (US–UK 2025): tariffs cut from 27.5 % to 10 %, quota 100 000 cars/year.
- Strategic logic: Differentiation → exclusivity over volume + “Electric British Elegance.”

Jaguar’s fearless strategy comes with significant challenges:

- Customer retention: Jaguar predicts retaining only 15% of its current customer base, a dramatic shift from its traditional loyalists.
- Market demand: Questions remain about whether the ultra-luxury EV segment can sustain the aggressive pricing strategy.
- Production gap: The company will have no new luxury vehicles until the electric lineup launches in late 2025 or early 2026, risking a loss of market relevance.
- Brand identity: Alienating long-time enthusiasts in favour of a new, younger demographic may come at a cost.

HOW TO LEAD IN THE LUXURY AUTOMOTIVE FUTURE

5 Strategies to Get Ahead in the Luxury Vehicle Market (by OliverWyman)

1. Accelerate portfolio upgrade

Transition rapidly from internal combustion engines (ICE) to electric vehicles (EVs). Go beyond the product itself and build new mobility services and experiences, shifting from a manufacturer to a service provider mindset.

2. Play as technology pioneers

Lead innovation through R&D and strategic partnerships. Balance technological advancement (AI, connectivity, battery systems) with cost control to sustain profitability.

3. Build organizational competencies

Foster a culture of innovation, agility, and openness. Invest in digital transformation, customer experience, and cross-border collaboration to strengthen competitiveness.

4. Go to market with direct-to-consumer (DTC)

Deliver personalized, high-end buying experiences. Combine direct sales with reimagined dealership roles (agency or hybrid models) to maintain exclusivity and customer intimacy.

5. Reposition the luxury brand

Refresh brand identity by blending heritage with modern values, sustainability, innovation, and digital lifestyle, to appeal to younger, tech-savvy, and environmentally conscious luxury buyers.

FOCUS - Keller's model

Why Do I Think The Strategy Will Work

Splitting Jaguar into two distinct sub-brands—one dedicated to ultra-luxury electric vehicles and the other focused on high-performance models—offers both strategic and practical merit.

This dual-brand architecture would allow Jaguar to preserve and amplify its performance DNA, while simultaneously ascending into the ultra-luxury EV segment, positioning itself as a true competitor to marques like Bentley, Aston Martin, and Porsche. The approach is not merely theoretical; it has proven feasibility within the group itself.

Land Rover's successful multi-brand strategy—operating Range Rover, Discovery, and Defender as differentiated sub-brands under one umbrella—demonstrates JLR's capability to manage diverse brand identities that serve distinct customer bases without diluting parent equity. By leveraging this internal precedent, Jaguar can:

Differentiate Target Segments: Position one line as a high-performance electric sports range (reviving the spirit of F-Type and racing heritage) and the other as a pure ultra-luxury electric portfolio (representing sophistication, craftsmanship, and serenity).

Optimize Brand Architecture: Maintain a unified master brand identity (“Jaguar”) while developing strong emotional sub-brand narratives.

Capitalize on Shared Expertise: Use common technological platforms, R&D infrastructure, and sustainability goals to ensure efficiency without compromising brand individuality.

Ultimately, this strategic bifurcation would enable Jaguar to become the best of both worlds—a symbol of performance purity and electric luxury excellence, aligned with evolving consumer expectations and JLR's long-term electrification vision.
